“ Life can be painful here. Loss is inevitable. So let us grieve when we must, but always with hope. In His hands, we find solace. In His heart, we find rest. In His time we find meaning. In His eyes, we are blessed. In His strength, we're made mighty. In His light, morning breaks. In His word, He has promised. In His coming we awaken. We are heartbroken. Thoughts and prayers to my grieving family.

“ Through letters, emails and personal conversations, Brant and I journeyed together in his walk with God. It brought him much comfort and hope in some of his darkest days. It has been said, that at the end of the day, what gives our lives meaning, is how we are loved. Brant knew he was never without the thoughts, prayers and love of his family and friends. He was a child of God. Brant knew the unconditional love and grace of God. Brant will forever spread his wings in the glory of heaven.
