“Candy and I were best friends. We went to school together from elementary through high school and then reconnected in 1995. Her and I talked to each other almost every day. We laughed a lot, cried a lot and yes, even got mad at each other but we always made up and we really felt more like sisters than friends. She was a very independent soul. She always said what she felt and I loved that about her. If she was mad, she was going to tell you. Lol! A caring woman with a heart of gold. I miss, Candy but I know she is in a better place and no longer in pain. To Ryan and Rhonda, your mother loved you deeply. She talked about you every day with fondness and joy. I love you, Candy. Love, Rox
