“ Liz was a good friends little sister. She was more mature than most her age...knew what she wanted and worked toward her goals. Always admired her feisty disposition and am really happy to hear (from another poster) that she gave the bible consideration. This life is nothing compared to what is to come, and in trying with an open heart, HE never disappoints <3 Death is only sad for us... HE makes all things NEW.

“ Liz, your wit and sarcastic sense of humor will never be matched. So sorry we didn't have more time to get to know each other. You were one of my favorite customers that turned into a friend. It was an honor to know you. Rest in peace, friend.

“ I am so thankful to have met her thru my former workplace. She was one of my all time favorite managers. Not only did we match with our sarcasm, but she was a great listener during the horrible boss transition. I wish I could have known her longer. I will miss you greatly Liz!!!

“ Liz was a co worker/supervisor at my sons work. She was very good to him and helped him when another worker was harassing my son. She even called me to tell me she was reporting his situation to the manager. She was a very sweet person and I was so very sorry to hear of her passing. She really looked out for the younger employees at their work. Prayers for your family

“ Oh my sweet friend, Liz. I am heartbroken. 💔 You were the first person I ever hired at the CarryOut & you were a loyal employee for many, many years. More importantly, you were my dear friend & I cherished all the memories working, cooking, laughing & Bible studying we had together. Every day this week I have recited your favorite verse, James 1:2, in your honor. I am thankful I had the opportunity to know you, love you & walk through your faith journey with you. May God's blessings be overflowing as you sit at the feet of Jesus & experience true Joy through & through. □
